

Lakeland University's Social Justice Camp 2023

Sunday, June 18 - Thursday, June 22, 2023

We're here to engage local area high school students in the work of social justice! Campers receive meals, lodging, and camp materials. We will visit social justice sites, invite activists to work hands-on with campers, build relationships with each other and Lakeland faculty and students, and have a lot of fun. Camp will build awareness of social justice and social justice issues that will lead to a better understanding of how to tackle real-world problems by looking at them through multiple lenses. Together, we will envision a more just future for our communities and the world.

Program overview of topics/focus areas:

- Social justice through art, religion, music, culture and more.
- Educational discrimination and student rights
- Organizing and advocacy

Eligibility

Students entering their high school junior or senior year in the fall of 2023.

Application timeline and fee

$100 (need-based scholarships available.)

SPOTS LIMITED! Application deadline May 1st.

To be considered for a need-based scholarship, please write a few sentences why the scholarship would be helpful in the appropriate space on the registration page. Please note that scholarships are limited.

The safety and health of campers and staff is our highest priority. We will monitor the spread of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) and will adjust camp accordingly.

Apply online at: Lakeland.edu/socialjusticecamp or scan the QR code.

Questions? Contact Le'Shay Guy

Director of Student Diversity, Equity and Belonging Initiatives, Asst. Director of the Ulrich Center
GuyL@lakeland.edu Office: 920-565-1043 ext. 2510